
San Antonio police, firefighter benefits on Monday's city agenda

SAN ANTONIO — Mayor Julián Castro's Legacy Task Force, appointed to study the city's growing public safety budget, will hold what's expected to be its last meeting Monday afternoon.

The 13-member panel has met seven times since October to analyze the impact of “legacy costs” for firefighters and police officers on the city's general fund.

These include pre-funded retiree health care, [REDACTED] pensions, active-duty health care and other benefits for rank-and-file personnel.

The task force is expected to finalize a series of recommendations at its last meeting to forward to the City Council.

Council members are slated to review the recommendations later this month. Monday's meeting starts at 2 p.m.

The San Antonio Express-News will continue its coverage of this developing story today. Check back with mySA.com for updates.

jbaugh@express-news.net

